

IT'S INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY. HOW ARE YOU CELEBRATING?

Today is International Women's Day, an occasion to celebrate the social, economic, and political achievements of women, and to call for gender equality around the globe.

To honor this important day, we at Share & Care are recognizing groups of rural women who are confronting injustices and creating lasting, positive changes in their own communities.

Meet Meera

Meera lives in the Anmari village of Tatijharia block, a remote Indian village where violence against women is common, and where there are few resources for those who seek protection from abuse.

To help empower women in this area, one of our partner NGOs organized a self-help group (SHG), or a group of women from similar backgrounds, in the village.

Meera joined the group. Then one day, her husband assaulted her.

She sought advice from her fellow SHG members, who assured her this incident would not be ignored. They promised to use their new strength of solidarity to create change.

To read more about Meera (and about how Share & Care is strengthening SHGs like hers), visit our blog.
