

Inspiring Change, One Student at a Time

This summer, our dedicated Kids4Kids (K4K) interns traveled to India at their own expense to volunteer at the Light of Life Trust (LOLT) in Mumbai. Their mission? To empower underprivileged students with vital computer skills and create lasting impact.

Transformative Experiences

Our K4K volunteers taught essential applications—like Google Suite—opening new doors of opportunity for these eager learners.

“

Seeing the students so excited to learn new lessons every day was heartwarming. Some students had gone to college and were using the applications we showed them last year!

—Rhea, K4K President

“

Teaching them was a very special experience and truly humbling. I got to see another side of the world which I don't get to see in my day-to-day life.

—Anya, Project Fundraising Coordinator

Building Skills, Bridging Gaps

The Kids4Kids interns not only imparted crucial technological skills but also connected deeply with the students, gaining enlightening perspectives on their educational needs.

“

Teaching and talking to the students gave me incredible insight into their lives. It really showed me the need for proper technological education in India, especially as we enter a technological age.

—Rhea Shah

Watching each of them learn new skills, like creating their own resumes and navigating apps like Canva, was truly inspiring. Their improvement in reading skills was particularly impressive.

—Shanaya Parikh
