

Every Gift Supports Communities in India

Everyone Deserves Their Flowers

Mother's Day looks different for everyone. Whether you're honoring your mom, a mother figure, or someone you're missing, every mother plants something that grows with each generation. Give in her honor and help another family bloom.

Donate $50 or more by May 31 to receive a free wildflower seed gift. Every gift supports mothers, children, and communities across India.

Include your or your gift recipient's name and shipping address (USA Only) in your donation notes.

A Mother Helps Her Family Bloom

Upasi Devi once dreamed of going to school. Married at 12, she began working in agriculture. With four children and under financial strain, she turned to Share & Care's partner PRADAN, where she gained the tools to grow her farm, start a fishery, and increase her income substantially.

Today, Upasi is financially independent and has supported both her children and grandchildren through school, enriching the lives of her entire family.

Generations of Volunteers, Generations of Change

In 1982, Asha Dalal and other members helped plant the very first seeds of the Share & Care Foundation. As one of the founding members, she was a crucial part of the team that led clothing drives and developed scholarship programs for students. Asha provided her home to the organization for projects and various Share & Care committee work. Her children followed her into service. Her granddaughter, Yamini, was later one of the leaders of the Kids4Kids program, which helps young people fund education across India.

Asha started her legacy of philanthropy, and her family has never stopped bringing meaning to the lives of the underprivileged.

Happy Mother's Day from all of us here at the Share & Care Foundation.
